

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An actuator, operated by being supplied with electric power, needs an initial setting for performing a desired operation by recognizing its starting position. The initial setting is 5 conducted when an abnormality occurs in a signal which represents an operation of the actuator. The initial setting is also conducted when a system for the actuator recognizes a fact that a battery is electrically disconnected in association with 10 information denoting a condition of the battery in a memory.